THIRD ST. OPENERS

Proposed New Route to Union Depot Shorter Than Present One.

The distance from the Union depot to the corner of Madison and Main via the proposed extension of Third street through the old Y. M. C.A. property, on Union avenue, to Rayburn boulevard is about one block less than via Main street. To be more eract that its only one of the incidental reasons why Third street should be extended south of Union avenue, according to the members of the Third street-Rayburn committee, which met at the Chamber of Commerce building Wednesday afternoon. James S. Robinson, chairman, presided at the meeting and it was decided to proceed at once in the effort to get the street extended as soon as possible.

An ordinance for opening the street probably will be introduced at the next meeting of the city commission. A special committee, composed of Mr. Robinson, Charles M. Bryan, J. Goldsmith, E. G. Willingham, Millard Naill, Eurene Laurensi and A. McNicholas, was appointed to present the matter to Mayor Monteverde and the city commissioners.

New Outlets Necessary.

With the ever increasing traffic on Main street and the recent rapid growth of the city the necessity for another through theroughfare from the business district to the passenger depots and South Memphis becomes more urgent every day. With Third street open much of the traffic now congesting Main street will be diverted to the shorter and more direct route, it is believed.

The city aiready owns most of the property that would have to be vacated to open the street and the property where of a greater part of the remainder now have agreed to donate the required right of way on condition that they will be put to me expense for paving it. There are only a few pieces of property that would have to be purchased outright, it is said, the largest of which is the old Y. M. C. A property, which now blocks Third street at Union avenue.

Little Land To Be Bought.

From Union to Gayoso avenue one-half of the length of the proposed ex-tension has already been vacated for where the extension will open into Ray burn boulevard, the projectly owners have all agreed to giv the right of way on condition that the street be paved without cost to them, with the exception of one triangular piece, 44 by 183 feet, and two or three other triangular eces much smaller in size. On the outhwest corner of Rayburn and Beale to be acquired.

One-third of the cost of opening and paving the street would be borne by the city, for which purpose the city now has on hand $22,500 from bonds issued and sold to pay for this improvement. Two-thirds of the cost of acquiring the Two-thirds of the cost of acquiring the property necessary to open the street would be borne by the property owners on Third street and Rayburn boulevard between Adams and Calhoun avenues. Two-thirds of the cost of the paving would be assessed against the property fronting on the part of the street actually paved, from Union to Calhoun.

Steps Considered To Enforce New Tax On Luxuries

Confusion has arisen in the levying of many of the new luxury taxes, and a conference is being held in Nashville by E. B. Craig, collector of internal revenue for Tennessee, and local deputies to enforce the law more religible. nue for Tennessee, and local deputies to enforce the law more rigidly.

Some of the smaller dealers in soft drinks have adopted the custom of dropping a penny in a hox for every soft drink soid for which a tax is provided. There is no certain way for the collectors to ascertain whether or not the proper number of pennies is dropped in the boxes, and it is expected that a closer supervision will be outlined at Thursday's meeting.

Discrepancies in the filing of income and corporation tax returns are also under discussion.

J. N. Robinson, division deputy in charge of the West Tennessee office in Neembils, and three other deputies are in Nashville attending the conference. Those who are in attendance are M. J. McCornick, A. J. Yancey and E. C. Dunlap.

Hospital Authorities Say Miss Gladys Davis Probably Will Recover.

Desperation from a trivial mix-up in a love affair, was the police version of why Miss Gladys Davis, pretty girl. 22 years old, who said she lived at 22 South Lauderdale street, swallowed several tablets of bichoride of mercury, shortly after 1 a. m. Thursday while waiting to be served with a lunch in the Rosebud cafe, Mouroe avenue, near Main street.

The girl was with several companions, who observed her as she slipped the poison into her mouth. She was placed in a taxi by Dave Mortiand, who was scated at an adjoining table at the time, and was raced to the General hospital, where nurses gave her heroic first-aid treatment. It was said at the hospital Thursday that the girl had good chances to live.

Miss Davis is said to have remarked a time or two, "He won't ever hit me any more," while her companions were endeavoring to relieve her jufferings.
